The clause appropriating $12,000 to the Western House of Refuge, and the amendment appropriating $9,000 more to the same object, were discussed at length. The appropriation of $12,000 was finally passed. The amendment was further discussed, and lost—10 to 14. The section providing for the purchase of the law library of Judge Bronson was debated. No action was taken upon it, however. The bill appropriates $3,000 to the Rensselaer Institute, and $5,000 to the Genesse Academy.

He explained the necessity for this appropriation of $1,000 He explained the necessity for this appropriation for $1,000 He explained the willing to grant to Northern New York the small aid they asked through the representatives from that portion of the State, when hundreds of thousands of dollars were distributed among the more favored portions of the State, without a word, or without eaying a word, or if saying a word, that word was "Aye." He trusted/hat*alike spirit of friendship would be extended towards their requests. The village of Watertown was a flourishing one. It contained many poor men—laboring men—and he really hoped that this small appropriation would be made.

Mr. Convis supported the doctrine of aiding academies as well as colleges.

Mr. Convis supported the doctrine of aiding academies to all, and not select a sppropriate to academies, let us do it fairly—appropriate to all alike. Divide the whole sum which we desire to appropriate to academies to all, and not select a few, and advance them above the rest. He was for appropriating this sum, not to academies at all, but to the common schools. Let it go where the people at large are most deeply interested—in the common schools. The people care nothing for the academies, comparatively, but they do for the common schools, which are the most important. If the Treasury was so full that it must overflow, let that overflow fall where it was most needed, and where it would do the most good.

Ireastry was so ind that it must overflow, let that overflow fall where it was most needed, and where it would do the most good.

Mr. Lrox responded; he said it was necessary to have the fountain head before the stream could flow. The teachers must be educated in the academies, and the children could be taught in the common schools.

Mr. Rockes said there was an academy in his district which certainly deserves an appropriation as much as any in the State; and, if appropriations were to be made to any, he should deem it but due to his constituency that the Randolph Academy should be sided. He had been applied to to endeavor to get such aid for them, and he would be glad to see that appropriation made; but he felt the difficulty of adopting the principle. He was fully satisfied that if they passed an appropriation to one, they could not draw a line cutting off others.

Union Course, L. I.—TROTTING.—On Wednesday last, a number of gentlemen visited the above course to witness a viously, between Trump and Flora Temple, but they were adly disappointed. Trump was not in order to go, and his owners paid forfeit. During the afternoon a contest for a purse came off, and also a pacing match, but neither of them seemed to please. The trot was a one-sided affair, Black Jim beating Futnam and Nelson's colt easily in the race, and acted very badly afterwards; but Nelson's colt had no excuse for being distanced in a 2-46 heat. The driver can possibly explain the cause to those who are inquisitive. A summary of the affair is as much as it is worth.

Cerrorenant Course, L. I. Theoremson. A trotting match for $400, mile heats, came off yesterday afternoon one to a wagon and the other to a sulkey. The wagon horse won handily in two straight heats and was never healed during the race. A summary will suffice:

The Second Teor retween O'Bleeds and Lary Surrole.
—This long looked for contest came off yesterday aftermoon, at the Prairie House Race Course. The trot was a purse of $300, two miles and repeat, in harness. The o'dd grey mare'' locked as fine as a three year old race colt, and as the sequel showed, actually felt so, for she, ran off with her driver, charley Ellis, on the first heat, for a full mile, at a full gallop, for which, according to our opinion, she ought to have been ruled out, but so the judges did not think. This bad conduct of Lady Suffolk gave the heat to O'Blenis, in 5 minutes and 23 seconds, although he was not urged a foot of the way. The first mile of the second heat was beautifully contested, as they trotted side and side most of the way. On the first half of the second mile O'Blenis broke up, when the mare passed him, but he caught her again at the quarter stretch, and in a desperate rush home, passed her on the inside, winning, by about twenty yards, this heat, and also the race. The time of the second heat was 5 minutes and 23 seconds.—St. Louis Duity Union, June 19

Providence, June 26, 1851.

There was a larger attendance on Washington Race Course to-day than yesterday. New York, Boston, Phitadelphia and Baltimore, were largely represented. The match was well contested. The Boston Girl won the first heat in 2 minutes and 31 seconds, and the second also in 2 minutes 35 seconds; she therefore took the purse.

Boston Girl, Stranger, and Lady Bond, were entered for the first race; and Hector, Stranger and Trojan, for the second, a purse for $100, which Hector won in three straight heats. Time, 2 minutes 33 seconds—2 minutes 37 seconds, and 2 minutes 35 seconds.

The Opera at Castle Garden. The enthusiasm now incident to the production of the operas at Castle Garden is a theme for the comment of all lovers of music. As yet, the timid fear to express, one would think, their opinions with regard to some of the artists, except by the whirlwind of applause which attends many portions of the performance. Some seem frank, and govern their criticism by their emotions. Others are more rational, and declare their opinions, wit a slight reservations. All seems to want to know the respective value of Salvi and Bettini-or which is best. slight reservations. All seems to want to know the respective value of Salvi and Bettini—or which is best. Both are great artists; but Bettini has the advantage over Salvi, in a fresher and more powerful voice. His recitative is better than Salvi —his style is more massive and dramatic; and he can, when he wills it, sing with more forcible expression than the refinement of Salvi caproduce in the best moments of that artist. The effect of Salvi's voice is to produce a conce—that of Bettinis is to cut out sharply an integlic. The forcer stands out precisely what it is. The latter can be studied, and, can raise an impression in the mind, cienter and better defined, whenever it is applied to it. Salvi's style is an impression of the seal of genius—Bettinis's is the seal of genius its if. This comparison may give some idea of the art of two tener vocalists, both of whom merit the highest distinction.

To night, "Don Giovanni" will be performed, with a powerful cast. Those who delight in this marvelious work, as it is deemed by some masical critics, will have an opportunity of seeing Donna Anna's seal for revenge upon the musder of her father sink into the tamest of wishes; will view in Ottavio a lawer of the laniest description, who seems to be always walking off into corners when the object of his rempeame is not — and will be hold so for as the first act is concerned, a merry Zerlina. The drama is not equal to some of the music, particularly that in the Italian manyer or school. Besthoven thought and said that his art nower should have been degraded to the foolety of so scan alones a subject as—Don Giovanni; but this is only an irradicious opinion, though we perfectly coincide with, it.
